

Marisa K. Dowling, MD, MPP

Dr. Dowling is currently the GW Health Policy Fellow for the Class of 2021. As a fellow, Dr. Dowling splits her time between working clinically (DC Veterans Affairs (VA) Hospital and United Medical Center (UMC)) and in health policy placements. She went to Duke University for medical school and completed her Emergency Medicine residency at the University of Maryland. Dr. Dowling also holds a master's in public policy degree from the Harvard Kennedy School of Government. Before medical school, she worked in DC for two years at health policy think tanks, studying delivery system reforms. Dr. Dowling has also worked for state (Massachusetts Health Policy Commission) and federal health agencies (Emergency Care Coordination Center, Agency for Healthcare Research and Quality). Dr. Dowling has been an ACEP member since medical school and looks forward to actively contributing as Councillor.
